On behalf of the Kirkcaldy Foodbank I would like to thank you and your congregation for your generous donations of food. All donations are so crucial and so much appreciated by the foodbank and those it helps.

As you will know, in these very challenging times things are not easy for most of us but for those who struggle financially day by day these extra stresses can mean breaking point for many.

With the uncertainty about future jobs and the difficulties with finances for many, caused by the pandemic, the Foodbank is still very busy. We have space in the new Adam Smith Enlightenments Hub in Kirkcaldy High Street and have found new premises in Burntisland thanks to the Salvation Army. Although there was a slight reduction in the numbers coming for support in July and August we know that the first lockdown caused a large increase in demand from couples and families. Lets hope a further lockdown will not be necessary in Scotland.

The generous support from people of all ages and from all walks of life never ceases to touch and amaze those working at the foodbank. All of us are affected in some way in these unsettling times and yet so many still feel able and willing to share what they have with those in need in their communities.

With heartfelt thanks again for your continued support.
